

Dear Educator,

If you're planning for a school closure, or in the midst of one right now, we want you to know that Scholastic is here for you.

Regardless of your school's/district's virtual learning plans, preparing instructional content for multiple weeks away from school can be daunting. To support you, your students, and families, we've created the Scholastic Learn at Home website. This free resource provides all students with 20* days' worth of exciting learning journeys that span the content areas created by our editors to keep your students actively engaged in learning while school is closed.

Your students will have access to approximately three hours of meaningful learning opportunities per day, including projects based on exciting articles and stories, virtual field trips, reading and geography challenges, and so much more.

Our journeys are accessible on any device, and are designed to limit the need for printing. Students can learn on their own or with their families. Please share this site with your students and their families to extend their learning outside of your classroom:

www.scholastic.com/learnathome

If you want to connect with your students while they are at home, try scheduling virtual class time. Some screen share programs you may want to consider† are:

- Google Hangouts
- GotoMeeting
- Zoom Meetings
- Join.me
- UberConference

†These are resources not provided by Scholastic, but they have free options for virtual meetings.

We know this may be a stressful time for you and your students, and want you to know that we are here to support you. Thank you so much for all you do to support students.

With best wishes from all of us at Scholastic,

Lauren Tarshis
Sr. VP, Editor in Chief & Publisher
Scholastic Classroom Magazines

If you have any questions or suggestions, please reach out to learnathome@scholastic.com.

